How has the pandemic impacted the way we work in Connecticut?

The pandemic we’re all living through right now would seem to have ushered in something of a revolution in how we think of “work.” On this episode of Cutline, you’ll hear from some of the foremost thinkers on the subject. And you’ll hear from workers across industries: a fast-food worker, healthcare worker, white-collar workers and the new entrepreneurs. We’ll explore the fundamental ways work has — and has not — changed as a result of the global pandemic. Cutline: The State of Work features people who are struggling every day to adapt to the new “state of work.”
