How can lessons from the Holocaust help us combat hate and protect democracy?

Connecticut saw a record high number of antisemitic incidents last year. The Holocaust remembrance movement says “never forget,” but surveys find the problem is deeper—many young people lack basic knowledge of the Holocaust. On the next Cutline, we look at links between antisemitism and extremism, visit a Connecticut classroom teaching the Holocaust, and explore the story of Sobibor, a secret Nazi death camp that was a site of bravery and resistance.

Cutline | Antisemitism Rising: Bearing Witness Then and Now
